SOUTH JERSEY MUSEUM OF AMERICAN HISTORY TAKES SUMMER BREAK, READIES FOR FALL EXHIBITS

GLASSBORO--The South Jersey Museum of American History, located at 123 High Street in downtown Glassboro, is in the midst of its annual three-week summer break this month, and will re-open on Thursday, September 2 with a full slate of fall exhibitions.

The museum will kick off an exhibit of works by artist Madeleine with an open house on Saturday, September 25. The show runs through Saturday, October 30. The Antique Train Show runs Friday, November 26-Sunday, February 6.

The South Jersey Museum of American History features Colonial exhibits, along with antique tools, equipment and farmsteads. The museum also specializes in American political history, including a complete chronicle of presidential elections from 1824 to the present. Hours of operation are Thursdays-Sundays, 1:00-5:00 p.m. and admission is free. More information is available by calling 856-442-0688.
